

In these times,
assessing and
managing risk in the family
enterprise is critical.

That's why FFI is dedicating a whole day for researchers to get their heads around it.

With economic uncertainty and volatility, family enterprises must be attuned to assessing and managing the impact of risk upon their success. As a researcher on the timely factors family businesses and family offices face, you know that connecting to and assimilating the valuable intelligence your scholarship requires demands countless hours, energy, and focus.

This year, FFI is determined to make your job a whole lot easier by setting aside a single occasion and letting it all come to you!

This September, at FFI's Annual Research and Education Symposium, you can get a year's worth of essential knowledge on the dimensions and dynamics of risk in one day, in one place.

Interact with expert thought leaders and your colleagues beginning Wednesday September 23 in New York City.
